BURIED IN A SEWER.

FRITZ WILDER LOSES HIS LIFE WHILE

Walking in a Small Side Sewer on Mattie Street in Golden Gate.

Fritz Wilder, a sewer contractor, was buried alive by a cave-in of a sewer at Golden Gate yesterday afternoon. There was no one in the neighborhood at the time of the accident and when he was found nearly an hour later he was dead.

Wilder had the contract for building a sewer to connect the residence of J. R. Williams on Mattie street, Golden Gate, with the main district sewer. The excavations had been made and Wilder had a consultation with Mr. Williams at 10 o'clock in the morning about the work. Having decided what was to be done Mr. Williams went into the house and Wilder got down into the ditch to make an examination as to the location of some connection. The last that was seen of him alive was when he was leaning over the bank with just his heels in sight.

Mattie street is not a very frequently travel one, and no one happened to pass that way until Williams came out of his house about three-quarters of an hour afterwards. Wilder had been working alone on the sewer, and there were no other men in the neighborhood, so when Mr. Williams came out of his yard he was not surprised that no one was around the street. He thought that Wilder had gone to the village for something.

But when Mr. Williams walked out to look at the progress of the work on the sewer he found that a portion of the bank had caved down into the ditch, and from under the pile of dirt projected the legs of a man. Mr. Williams immediately jumped into the ditch, and with a little effort pulled the man, who proved to be Wilder, out from under the pile of earth.

Wilder was dead and had probably been caved on a very few minutes after Mr. Williams went into the house three-quarters of an hour before.

The amount of earth that had fallen on Wilder was not very great, but had covered him up to the waist and pinioned his arms in such a manner that he could not use them to force his way out. No bones were broken and death had resulted from asphyxiation. Wilder was thirty-five years old. He lived on Summer street in Golden Gate where he leaves a wife and a nine-year-old child.

University Notes.

It has been decided by the orators among the students at the State University that the Legislature should pass a bill making it a misdemeanor to play football within this State after the 29th day of this month. A good-sized audience was present to hear this question debated by the student congress on Wednesday evening and cheered each side whenever an anathema was heaped upon the sport or when a speaker soared into the flights of eloquence in defense of the popular college game. W. N. Friend, president of the Associated Students, introduced the measure and made a fearful tirade against gridiron slogging and its participants. E. H. Rubottom, a candidate for half-back on the Varsity team, led the opposition and championed the cause of the pigskin kickers.

The Berkeley Gun Club, which was recently organized, will have its first shoot next week at the old rifle butts back of the new Mechanics' building.

Professor H. T. Ardley will lecture tomorrow evening before the Mechanics' Institute at the library building, San Francisco. His subject is "An Artist's Tour Around the World," and will be the first of a series of lectures.

The University of California Magazine, a monthly, comes out today. Professor E. B. Clapp, head of the Greek department, has an article on "The Classics in Ancient and Modern Times."

The baseball management has decided to play the class baseball games off as soon as the football season is over.

Our Football Boys.

Today a Thanksgiving supplement to the Berkeleyan, the Occident and Josh, three of the student publications at the University will make its appearance on the campus. It contains fourteen rousing college songs, which have been written and published at different times this term. Most of them are from the pens of undergraduates, but a few are the compositions of members of the faculty. Miss C. Barto has a lay on "Our Football Boys" to the tune of "Tommy Atkins," the chorus of which is:

Oh! football, football laddies,
You're the pride of every heart;
You take the Stanford weeklings,
And make their faces smart.
May you always sell the old man,
May you tackle sure and true,
God bless you, football laddies,
Here's your Mater's love to you!

The Same for Berkeley.

The town of Vallejo owns a good wharf and consequently it has competition by both land and water. A short time ago the Montecello commenced running from San Francisco to Vallejo and it cut the price of fare from $1 per trip to 75 cents, or $1 for the round trip. This hurt the Railroad company so they put on a boat and cut the fare down to 25 cents. Now comes Piper Aden, Goodall & Co., who will on and after Monday next reduce the fare to 10 cents per trip. Some of the companies will lose money but the town of Vallejo will receive a great deal of benefit. Thousands of people who have never before seen Vallejo will now take advantage of the cheap fares and visit the town and all of them will spend money there, and some of them will buy land there.

This same state of affairs will happen to Berkeley when the town owns its wharf. Steamers will be plying between West Berkeley and the city every half hour and the fare will not be over five cents and the best of service and accommodations will be given, and thousands upon thousands of people who have never visited Berkeley will come here each day and their numbers will be doubled on Sundays. Hundreds of these people will rent or purchase homes in Berkeley in order to enjoy its climate, which is so much better than San Francisco.

The Vallejo, Stockton and Sacramento boats with their cheap fares will run at the Berkeley wharf every day. The Southern Pacific will reduce its fares and stop all trains at West Berkeley. Dozens of runners will be employed at the wharves in San Francisco and the name of Berkeley will be known to every person who arrives in that city, and they will naturally come across the bay to see the town that they hear so much about.

This is not a visionary view, but is what will actually happen when the new wharf is built. Berkeley is twice the size of Vallejo and notwithstanding that it has the Navy Yard at its door, does not receive or ship as much freight as Berkeley. There are dozens of parties who would run a ferry and freight service to Berkeley if there was any place for them to land their passengers.

It is much easier and cheaper to run 7 miles than it is to run 30 and more profitable where there is a population of 10,000 or 12,000 people, than where there is but 5000 or 6000 people.

The people of Berkeley now have an opportunity to have all of this competition if they will just join hands and vote for bonds for building a wharf.

The weather of the past week has been the warmest known during the month of November for 22 years.

The Board of Education and the faculty of the Oakland High School have set down upon the proposition that the school send an athletic team East this winter, and the boys are thoroughly mad.

Electric cars running all over town and a five-cent fare to San Francisco is what the Berkeley people will have, if they carry the bond proposition for a wharf.

A MASS MEETING

HELD AT NORTH BERKELEY LAST NIGHT

Under the Auspices of the N. B. Improvement Club in Reference to School Bonds.

North Berkeley Improvement Club.

Pursuant to public notice given the members of the North Berkeley Improvement Club for the purpose of talking over matters pertaining to the welfare of that section of the town generally and the issuing of bonds for school houses particularly.

There was a very good attendance and the members present fairly represented North Berkeley. They consisted of men who have interests here in the way of property and want to see the government of Berkeley carried on in as economical a way as possible and at the same time supply as many wants as its finances will allow.

The main feature in the business of the evening, as foreshadowed, consisted in a discussion of the bond issuing proposition only as far as school houses are concerned. The issuing of bonds for a wharf was a side issue if it was an issue at all. From the tenor of ideas of the different ones who expressed opinions it was gathered that there was danger ahead if the propositions heretofore advanced were attempted to be carried out. The consensus of opinion was that the bonds for school houses should be voted upon in two ways. First there should be a chance given the voters to express their choice in having either a High School building or grammar and primary school buildings.

School Director Robertson, who has paid considerable attention to the matter as far as school houses are concerned, explained the business as he viewed it. He did not favor the proposition of making a segregation of the fund. To divide it equally giving one-half of the amount asked for, namely $60,000, for the purpose of erecting a high school building, would not suit the ideas of those who were working particularly for that one point. Neither would $60,000 as the other portion be sufficient, according to his notion, for the building of such grammar and primary school houses in case it was voted to go without a High School building.

He thought that to erect such buildings as would be necessary for grammar and primary school houses to relieve the present pressure on the High School it would take $75,000. His explanations were well received by those present as it showed that he had taken more than a passing interest in the matter.

The feeling of those present was pretty well concentrated upon the theory that the grammar and primary school house proposition might be carried, but it was extremely doubtful if the High School combined with the other grades would be likely to meet the views of enough voters to make it a law.

A resolution was finally passed for presentation to the Board of Trustees this evening, asking them to make a division of the present proposition of voting for $120,000 for High School buildings and others of a lower grade, and make the two propositions, each one asking for $60,000.

Whether the Board will take any action upon the matter remains to be seen.

For Tonight.

The GAZETTE has announced from time to time that the young people of the North Berkeley church were preparing something good for tonight, and this evening we are pleased to present the program to our readers, with the wish that they will all attend: Miss Stella Ames, reader; Miss Rowena Robb, contralto; Professor Seekamp, violin soloist; Miss Elsie Gould, accompanist of the drills. Vocal selection, Omega Alpha Quartette.

Violin solo, Prof. Seekamp. Housemaids' Drill: Eva Cooper, Carnel Ostrom, Alpha and Annie Jewett, Lucy Pierce, Agnes Kelly, Aramanda Meinhart, Elsie Arps, Enid Carnall, Marion Wirt, Rose Benglian and Theresa Eisenberg.

Vocal solo, "Ashore," Miss Robb. (Miss Klittie Eloise Dobbins, accompanist.)

Recitation, (a) "Ships," by Ella Wheeler Wilcox; (b) "Practical Experience vs. Superstitious Notions, from the Interior," Miss Ames.

Cornet solo, "O, Restless Sea," by White, Wm. G. May.

Song and wand drill: Virginia Pierce, Kate Peake, Viola Vervalin, Celsa Carnall, Lilly Lamp, May Lee, Mable Edwards, Jennie Gilbert, Hazel Preble, Gertie Hanscom, Pearl Wagner and Amanda Cavallier.

Vocal selection, Omega Alpha Quartette.

Violin solo, Prof. Seekamp.

Recitation, "The Round Up," a society story by Bruner, Miss Ames.

Vocal solo, "Cradle Song," Kate Vannah.

Tennyson's "Bugle Song," illustrated in a series of moving tableaux with bugle accompaniment by T. C. Crawford, and illuminating effect: Misses Mary C. McCleave, Grace E. Dobbins, May Howell, Ina Haskins and Nellie Dobbins.

It Is Said

That there will not be any votes in the Advocate office for either school bonds or wharf.

That when the new wharf is built there will not be an hour of the day that a vessel or steamer will not be loading or unloading here.

That there will be lots of fun at the masquerade ball at Unity Hall tomorrow evening and some fine costumes.

That the Railway Company were laying planking between the rails on Addison street and Shattuck avenue this morning.

That a connection was made with the water main on Addison street near Grant a few days ago and it was evidently improperly done as it is now causing quite a mudhole there.

That Mose Under has got to be quite a sport since he went to Sobrante. He purchased a chance in a raffle for a shotgun at that place a few days ago and threw 41. Just as he was congratulating himself upon being the owner of a fine shotgun another person threw 44. Mose is no longer a sport.

That terra cotta, terra del fuego and terra incognita are all different but that a holy terra is all one and the same.

That the maiden's song is cheering. The one we heard the other night didn't fill that kind of a bill.

That when the Board of Trustees asked for more light on the subject the Electric Company refused to give it.

That one of the new gasoline motorcycles which goes a mile in less than a minute has been ordered so that news can be obtained quicker. These things come up but we have to get them to be up to date.

That it looks now as if the town marshal had raided the weather clerk's saloon, he keeps everything so dry.

That the good die young. Who are good. Millions of people are living to a good old age.

That Casey's goat got away with a quart of Summerland oil and now at night his backyard is as light as day caused by that same goat's breathing out the flame every time she breathes.

That some one murmured "damn the finances, let's have the town hall fixed up."

HAS A STRONG JAW.

THE POUNDMASTER COMES IN CONTACT

With the Business End of a Vicious Horse and has His Jaw Badly Bruised.

Kicked in the Chin.

Yesterday evening at about 5 o'clock Mr. Lauterbach, the poundmaster, was attending to a horse at the pound, and after feeding walked around behind him to see that everything was secure before he locked up for the night. He had no sooner got behind the horse, which was evidently a vicious animal, than he kicked out with both feet striking Mr. Lauterbach in the chin and knocking him down. The animal then tried to back out of the stall and trample upon him but Mr. Lauterbach was quickly on his feet and got out of the enraged horse's way.

When he emerged from the building blood was running in a stream from his chin, where an ugly cut about an inch long was made by the hoof of the horse. He immediately went to a doctor, who had to take several stitches in the wound.

It is fortunate for Mr. Lauterbach that the horse had not kicked a little higher, else he would have probably been killed.

Boys Brigade.

The big posters all around town announcing that the Boy's Brigade would have an entertainment this evening in Sisterna Hall, has given the public notice of what is going on.

Great preparations have been made by these young men to have a social party that will bring cheer to the hearts of all who may attend and the number should be large. We all need encouragement and perhaps none more so than young men just about entering into the stern walks of life. These young men are working for a Christian object and need assistance.

The old saying that "all work and no play makes Jack a dull boy," is a trite one. That all work might be a close neighbor to the young men they will mix pleasure and labor and thus make the lemonade of life palatable.

One cannot spend a few hours in Berkeley any more pleasantly than going to Sisterna Hall this evening where you will be courteously received and everything will be done to make you forget for while the sorrows which are always getting loose in this world and floating around promiscuously and are surely bound to light on some one.

The Sunday School of the West Berkeley Methodist Church will give an entertainment at the church on next Wednesday evening for the purpose of raising funds for the Xmas time. The entertainment will be given by the scholars, assisted by outside talent. Admission 25 cents which includes refreshments. Sunday School scholars free.

That it is no easy job to catch violators of the law when an officer is handicapped in the way of having information to go out ahead of him to the evildoers.

That within the past two weeks more than a dozen letters have been received and answered to persons wanting to know more particulars about Berkeley as a town for manufacturing purposes.

That the calls for houses to rent, which at this time of year is generally quiet, are now quite often.

That people strike the keynote when they advertise in the GAZETTE. It gets around amongst all of the people and they read it.

That the north wind is a great boon to California. More real estate changes when it blows than at any other time.

That you do not have to go on the hills to see that Berkeley is in the straight line of progression. Evidences are on all sides.

That without the least fear in the world Berkeleyans will build houses all the year. Four new buildings were commenced yesterday.

GAZETTELETS.

Next Monday will be the last day for the payment of the first installment of taxes. After that date 15 per cent will be added.

The funeral of the late Mrs. Sarah Evoy will take place on Sunday afternoon at 8:30 o'clock from St. Joseph's church.

The funeral of C. L. S. Storck will take place from the West Berkeley Presbyterian Church on Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock. The interment will be in Mountain View cemetery.

The Board of Trustees will meet in regular session this evening at the Town hall, and the date of holding a special election to vote for bonds for a wharf and a high and grammar schools will be a part of the business to be transacted.

There are five condemned murderers in Folsom awaiting the day upon which they will be hung. Worden who was convicted at Woodland is one of them and Kovalev, the Russian murderer who was convicted at Sacramento yesterday will also be hanged at Folsom.

The Berkeley GAZETTE has enlarged to a seven-column folio and has an entire new dress that gives it a much better appearance, besides the business end seems to be "perkier up considerably."—Petaluma Courier.

The lads and lassies of West and East Berkeley Ashby avenue and Lorin are preparing their gowns and clothes for the grand ball which is to be given at Sisterna hall tomorrow evening by the members of Beacon Engine Co., the proceeds of which will go toward purchasing a new bell for the fire house. Every citizen should be interested in this and help the boys along, as they are always ready night or day to respond to an alarm of fire and to save life and property.

The reception tendered Rev. Dr. Swan and Mrs. Swan on Wednesday evening was very largely attended. The guests were received by Dr. and Mrs. Swan and Mrs. G. A. Easton, wife of the pastor emeritus of St. Mark's Church, and introductions were made by the reception committee, composed of James Palache, S. S. C. Parker, George W. Kline, Professor Merrill and Mr. Hobson. Refreshments were served at 10 o'clock. There were more than 300 present.

Any person who has been in business well knows that people patronize those places where they can get the best and the most for their money. Says a gentleman: "I have been traveling all my life and have visited nearly all parts of the world, and I find this to be the case everywhere. Large companies buy their goods in quantities. Getting them cheaper in this way they can sell them cheaper." C. Demetrakis has taken this position and he gets the best goods at the lowest prices. Like every good business man he wants to sell cheap to make trade, and he does so. He does not allow anyone to give his customers better goods or at cheaper prices, and hence his success.

The elements of the new comet discovered by Mr. Perrine at Mount Hamilton have been computed by Professor Leuschner of the University. The comet was observed here on Wednesday morning through the six-inch equatorial, and reports are received daily from the Lick Observatory. The computation is as follows: Perihelion passage, December 18th, 3695 Greenwich mean time; inclination, 131 degrees, 55 minutes, 1 second; longitude of node, 320 degrees, 1 minute, 22 seconds; longitude of perihelion, 231 degrees, 59 minutes; perihelion distance, December 18th, 1943 astronomical units (mean distance of sun from earth).

The Junior Aid Society of Lorin is composed of children who want to do good in this world and for some time past they have been preparing fancy work and other articles to be sold at a fair. Yesterday the fair was opened at the residence of Mrs. Havens on McGee street, and it was very successful. The fair will be held again this afternoon from 2 p. m. until 5:30 p. m. and in the evening from 7 p. m. to 10 o'clock. The money that is obtained from this fair will be used to help the needy people of Lorin. The people of Lorin are cordially invited to attend the fair tomorrow and tomorrow evening.

THE ARCH FIEND

WAS DRESSED IN A NEW TAILOR MADE SUIT

When He Appeared For the Sentence He Didn't Get Today—Man Killed in Alameda.

Special dispatches to the GAZETTE.

His Case Continued. San Francisco, Nov. 22.—Sentence was not pronounced upon Theodore Durrant by Judge Murphy this morning. He came into Court with a new tailor made suit of clothes, and immaculate linen and a flower in his button hole. When Judge Murphy called the case General Dickinson was on his feet in a moment and moved for a continuance. He stated that he had worked very hard upon the case in order to be ready but that he had been unable to get several affidavits, that were very material sworn to, and he thought that he would be ready by next Tuesday and surely by Wednesday. He had obtained new evidence which with the additional time he asked for he felt sure would insure Durrant a new trial. Judge Murphy granted the continuance until next Wednesday and informed the attorneys on both sides that they must be ready to go on with their arguments at that time. Mr. Dickinson refused to divulge what new evidence he had discovered, but stated that in his judgment it was sufficient to grant Durrant a new trial.

Crushed to Death.

Alameda, Nov. 22.—Frederick W. Delaney a young architect, 21 years of age attempted to board the local train at Park street station at 7:30 o'clock this morning, but missed his footing and was thrown under the wheels and was literally ground to pieces. The accident was due to his own carelessness, and no blame can attach to the employees of the train, who were allowed to go on their own reconnaissance.

A Costly Blaze.

Chicago, Nov. 22.—Another disastrous fire broke out among the high buildings of this city this afternoon. The fire started on the fifth floor of the seven-story building at 215 Van Buren street, which was occupied almost entirely by women. Three girls rushed to the windows and jumped to the street below. Nellie Turner and Kitty Landegras were so badly injured that they will die. The flames spread rapidly, and the entire structure will be destroyed. The flames have spread to the seven-story building on Franklin street, and that building will be destroyed. The loss will reach over $300,000.

Schooner Wrecked.

Ashland, Oregon, Nov. 22.—A message has been received here from Empire City stating that the schooner Bandinelle had stranded on the Umpqua bar while in a disabled condition. A heavy sea was running and Captain Winant and a passenger whose name is unknown, were washed overboard and were drowned in the breakers. The vessel will be a total loss.

A Notable Tailor Dead.

London, Nov. 22.—Redfern, the tailor, whose garments are worn all over the world, died here this morning.

Four hobos were brought before Judge James this afternoon. They all pleaded not guilty and asked for a jury trial. The Judge then set the trial for December 16th, and they will have to remain in jail until that time. Had they pleaded guilty they would probably have gotten off with three or four days.

That if Hiawatha's north wind did not blow hot and cold, that the present day succeeds in doing so.

That the crossing of the mill race, now being laid off by the city, is of aid to the water works.

That while the turkey is high for our Thanksgiving, "goose with sage and onion" is pretty good also.

That our town is going to feel the effect of the new city hall.

THE FAITH CURE.

The Legislature at its next session should enact a law making it a crime no less than murder for any person or persons in whose home a person is sick, if they do not call in a physician. There is scarcely a day passes but what a death is reported where the life of the person might have been saved had a physician been called in, but because the person who was sick believed in the Faith Cure or Christian Science, or because their relatives believed in it, no physician was called, and consequently the sick person died. This is something that the law should put a stop to just as soon as possible, before more lives are lost through this foolish fanaticism.

For several weeks the Oakland press has been chronicling the condition of Marie J. Smith, the daughter of a missionary who is following his profession in China. She has not been allowed by her mother to have any physician or any medicine. All she could have was the prayers of herself and of her mother, and of such friends as cared to include her in their devotions. Now the young woman is dead and her death is no doubt due to a lack of medicines and a physician's care.

At Beulah there has been a home established for the teaching of the faith cure. It is supported by Mrs. Carrie Montgomery, a wealthy Salvationist of Oakland, who is spending her wealth in doing good to her fellow creatures, but who has the faith cure wheel in her head. If she would turn her faith cure establishment into a hospital where worthy women could go and receive medical and surgical attendance she would be doing much more good. She is a strong Salvationist and believes in all of its articles and declarations, one of which is that all applicants for officers in the army must undergo a thorough medical examination. In fact there is not an insurance company in the country that requires as complete a bill of health and family record as does the Salvation Army for its officers.

This being the case it is hard to conceive why Mrs. Montgomery, whose opinions carry great weight in the army, can countenance such a foolish and dangerous ism as the faith cure. The Christian Science is even worse for it to a great extent is believed in and practiced by ignorant people and for money. This matter should be agitated until a law is passed forbidding it and making it a crime.

A DESERVED TRIBUTE.

It is seldom that a man who holds a public position can please everyone, and command the respect of every person with whom he comes in contact, but Berkeley has such a man in the person of John McCarthy, the present postmaster. He is always affable and courteous to all, and conducts his office in a manner that gives general satisfaction to all, and the people of Berkeley desire to have him retained in his office, and for that reason they have circulated a petition which has been signed alike by Republicans, Democrats and Populists, asking President Cleveland to reappoint him when his term of office expires in April next.

This is a worthy tribute to a thorough gentleman, and to one of Berkeley's best citizens, for Mr. McCarthy is a man who believes in the advancement of Berkeley, and is always on hand to help in any advancement. The circulation of this petition was done under his name, and is therefore a strong proof of his worth, and of the esteem that he is held in by his fellow citizens of all creeds and politics. Mr. Cleveland should be proud to have such a petition presented to him, and he should be prouder still to issue him a new commission.

The people of North Berkeley held a mass meeting last evening to talk over the school bonds, and it seemed to be the general belief that the High School and the grammar school bonds should be segregated. A great many of the residents of that portion of the town thought that the majority of the people were much more in favor of the grammar school bonds than they were of the High School bonds, and that if the call were made for $60,000 for High School and $60,000 for grammar schools the latter would carry even if the High School did not. Of course if there is any good reason for this belief it would be well to segregate the bonds, but we have given the question of bonds for schools and wharf a great deal of attention, and we believe that the whole thing will carry, in other words it is our belief that the $120,000 for wharf will carry and that the $120,000 for schools will carry. We are aware that there are quite a number of people who think that two or three years from now will be plenty of time to vote bonds for a High School, but we believe that the majority of these people will vote for the High School proposition rather than to lose the grammar schools and the wharf. All three of the propositions are needed and should carry and we believe that they will. We know that if the people of every part of the town will work together the bonds for all three propositions will carry and Berkeley will not only be looked upon as a thriving community, but it will be one.

The numerous burglaries and petty thefts that have been going on in Berkeley for some time will now come to an end. There is no doubt but what the same person has been committing all of the burglaries. He has been apprehended and is now behind the prison bars, where he will remain for a number of years. If any others have been operating in Berkeley beside him they will now give Berkeley a pretty wide berth, as they know that the Marshal and his deputies are vigilant and that they will surely be caught if they continue their depredations.

CLOAK DEPARTMENT

The enormous business we are doing in this branch of our store is simply astounding and far exceeds our most sanguine expectations. There must be something attractive about our wares and our garments has most emphatically declared them superior to anything seen in San Francisco at anything like such prices.

Our preparations were made long before the rise in the cloth market and therefore we made our purchases under favorable circumstances by large quantities for our customers profit.

For instance, we sell a boucle jacket with large mandarin sleeves and velvet piping at $7.50, a splendid fitting garment. An imported broadcloth double cape braided top and bottom with soutache braid, in black, brown, navy and electric, $6.75 and $7.50, an extraordinary value.

Heavy Covert jackets with velvet collars, $7.00. Plush coats $8.50. Plush coats trimmed with soutache $9.00. Boucle coats trimmed with real Thibet $10.00.

..... An Extraordinary Variety of Fine Garments to suit all Tastes.

Our Customers are Cordially Invited to Inspect our Cloak Department.

THE SPADE'S TESTIMONY.

According to a recent statement of Professor Sayce, it is now determined beyond a doubt that there was such a person as the queen of Sheba, and that there was such a district from which she hailed, and that her journey to see Solomon was one of the most natural things to be expected. The spade did it.

And we were told that there was no such person, no such place, etc. Wonderful thing, that spade. And it has come to pass that the testimony of a piece of old crockery is worth a dozen statements from the Bible. Ah, me—Chicago Standard.

Paraguay Tea.
Mate or Paraguay tea is made from the leaves of the Brazilian holly and takes the place of tea in nearly the whole of South America, where it has been employed by Indians from time immemorial and by their conquerors and settlers since the seventeenth century. The tree, if left alone, will acquire a height of 15 or 20 feet, but the plants from which the mate is collected are moderate sized shrubs, with numerous stems from one root.

Shaving.
Shaving was first introduced among the Romans about 800 B. C. According to Pliny, Scipio Africanus was the first Roman who shaved every day. Subsequently the first day of shaving was regarded by the Romans as the entrance upon manhood and celebrated with great festivities.

Mrs. N. E. Williams, who conducts the Delaware street notion store, is doing a flourishing business. The reason for this is because she sells her goods at a small profit, and consequently sells a large amount. Toilet soap is sold three cakes for 25 cents; Coate's machine cotton, six spools for a quarter; tobacco of all kinds, three packages for 25 cents; and all other goods in proportion.

Cars Numbered Thirteen.
A man carrying a heavy satchel chased a crostown car half a block the other day, and by reason of a slow going truck on the track in front of it was enabled to overtake it. As he was about to get aboard his glance rested on the side of the car for a moment. With an expression of alarm on his face he turned around and trotted back to the sidewalk.

"There's another," remarked the conductor.

"What's the matter with him? Wrong car?" asked a passenger.

"No. Guess not. He probably saw the number," replied the conductor, pointing to an ominous 13 painted on the woodwork. "You wouldn't believe there were so many superstitious people in New York until you've been a thirteener for awhile. This car don't do two-thirds the business of any other car on the line. Women don't mind it as much as men, as a rule, but some of the men will do anything rather than take this car. A chap chased me up yesterday, jumped on and jumped right off again. I called to him, and he yelled back:

"I'll miss my train, but I'd rather do it than ride in that hearse."

"Yet, as far as I've heard, this car never had an accident. There's a number of lines in town that won't have a 13 car on their trucks."—New York Sun.

Don't Like Cheap Drinkers.
In a bathroom near the Grand Central station there entered the other evening two gentlemen, closely followed by a third. The bartender, who had been talking to a companion, stepped toward the first two comers with the familiar remark: "What will you have?"

"I'll have a glass of beer," said one, and "Give me a glass of vichy," remarked the other.

The third party, who was alone, ordered a glass of ginger ale.

The bartender, more interested in what he had been saying to his friend than in the customers he was waiting on, drew two glasses of beer and placed them in front of the two gentlemen.

"I did not order beer," remarked the vichy drinker.

The glass of beer was then placed before the third party, who likewise refused it.

Finally the drinks were properly apportioned as per order, and the imbibers paid their checks and started for the door. The bartender had an unnecessary glass of beer on his hands, which annoyed him. He threw it away with the remark, "These cheap people cause more trouble than anybody else."—New York Herald.

Stop, Thief!
It falls to the lot of few men to be arrested for stealing their own property. This happened a few days ago on the Duke street division. The proprietor of a boot shop was informed that a man had snatched a pair of shoes from the doorway and was making off up the street. Being a bit fleet of foot, the shopkeeper bounded after the runaway. Finding there was every chance of being captured, the thief dropped the shoes and bolted down a side street. The owner picked them up and continued the chase. The crowd called out, "Stop, thief!" and a policeman appearing on the scene instantly caught hold of the man with the shoes in his possession. It was useless declaring that he was the owner. The policeman had heard that before, and nothing less than marching his captive back to the shop, to be given into custody, would suffice. The intelligent officer looked slightly disconcerted on finding that he had caught the proprietor of the establishment and let the thief go.—Birmingham (England) Mail.

Oriental Impertinence.
The world is pretty well used by this time to find many of its "new" achievements merely fresh discoveries of some art or invention known and lost centuries ago by the Chinese. We draw the line, however, at being robbed of our literary glories. Some one has discovered that an old Chinese—or is it Japanese?—poem has been unearthed that much resembles "The Last Leaf," by our Holmes of revered memory. This is not the last leaf, but the last straw that is bearable. If those persistent orientals do not stop matching our successes with their cast off history, we'll start a new crusade to find and raze to the ground the "factory for manufacturing replicas of modern achievements," which must be hidden somewhere in the interior of the effete east.—New York Times.

The Spade's Testimony.
According to a recent statement of Professor Sayce, it is now determined beyond a doubt that there was such a person as the queen of Sheba, and that there was such a district from which she hailed, and that her journey to see Solomon was one of the most natural things to be expected. The spade did it.

And we were told that there was no such person, no such place, etc. Wonderful thing, that spade. And it has come to pass that the testimony of a piece of old crockery is worth a dozen statements from the Bible. Ah, me—Chicago Standard.

MEALS FOR CLERKS.

EMPLOYEES OF LARGE PARIS STORES
DINE IN THE BUILDING.

A Tremendous Business in Itself When You Consider the Meals That Are Prepared and Served—Everything is Done
in First Class Style, but It Pays.

The refectories of the vast department stores or "bazaars" of Paris are among the most curious sights of the French capital. As soon as the Bon Marche and the Louvre—dear to the hearts of all American women who make the "grand tour"—and prototypes of the colossal establishments in New York and adjacent cities—began to assume great importance their projectors
were confronted with the question,
"How shall we organize the 'meal times' of these thousands of men and women?"

In France "lunch," as understood in America, is unknown. Every person, gentle and simple, makes of the early morning repast simply a "break-fast" and no more. A bowl of coffee and a large piece of crisp bread for the workingman and woman; the smoking chocolate in a Sevres cup and the brooches which melt in the mouth for the millions—these are the only distinctions.
For many generations the French have recognized that it is unbecomingly to take a hearty meal at 6, 7 or 8 in the morning. So they wait until 11 or 12, and millions wait until 1 o'clock before tasting the first substantial meal of the day.
Dinner, a second meal of two or three courses, and in no wise resembling the light repast which Americans know as "snapper," comes at 7, 8 or even 9, according to the circumstances of the person. Concierges, or house porters, generally dine at 9, winter and summer,
and sit over their meal an hour or two,
chatting and laughing. At that late hour the whole family is united, and its little affairs are discussed and settled.

With the organization of the "bazaar"
came the need of keeping a constant outlook over the hundreds of young men and women in each department, and economizing each moment of their time between the opening hours and the letting down of the great iron shutters before the immense windows at 6 p. m. precisely. It was with a view of this watch over the employees, rather than because of any philanthropic tendencies, that the owners and managers of the largest "bazaars" decided to make a compulsory for all employees to take their meals at noon and night upon the premises.

The bazaar proprietor said, "We must do this, as we do everything else, with an eye to the advertisement." And so they decided to install their refecto-ries very handsomely and to feed their employees well. The idea has paid from the start.

At the Bon Marche spacious and very handsome halls on the fourth story of the enormous edifice are devoted to the restaurant for the employees. Twelve thousand meals are served daily between 11 and 6 o'clock. Men and women eat in separate halls, and are served with the same politeness and attention that they would receive in restaurants or at "lunch counters"—if lunch counters had ever been inflicted on the French.

At the Louvre about the same number of meals are served, and the arrangements are wonderfully complete. The kitchens, with their seductive array of copper saucepans, and the pantries, with the thousands upon thousands of plates
and cups, all marked with the trade mark of the house—a majestic lion couchant, with his paws hanging over the letter "L"—and the little army of white capped and aproned cooks, waiters, bottle washers and potato peelers, are well worth a visit. Nor will the visitor get his back chafed. All is conducted with dignity and refinement, as in the house of a gentleman of fortune.

The cauldrons in the kitchens are immense. The visitor may look into one kettle which contains mashed potatoes for 8,000 men, and into another in which soup for 5,000 persons is simmering. Then the bottle department is something stupendous. Twelve thousand half bottles of good wine, guaranteed unadulterated, are served out daily. The bottles of bottle washers are busy from dawn to dusk, fetching up the rosy liquid or the yellowish white wine in huge pitchers of wood three feet high,
and then bottling it. Both the Louvre and the Bon Marche have wine cellars of vast extent for customers as well as employees.

At the Louvre there are three table services of 700 each for the men. At the Bon Marche a larger number can be fed at once. Each category of employees has its special room. The heads of departments dine together, and never mix with the head clerks of each counter.
The under clerks eat their boiled beef
and roast chicken without being troubled by the presence of their chiefs.
Then the humble ones, the packers, the staplers, the elevator men, the runners, the sweepers and lighters, have their long table, and finally, the garçons,
the men who wear the uniform of the house and accompany the delivery
persons and receive money for purchases,
have their particular room, and are allowed to come and go more irregularly than the others because of the peculiar nature of their service. The "ladies" occupy the same classification in their dining rooms, and are allowed to gossip
as freely as they will. There are no other things they say what they please on the subject that they are not under the control of the establishment during the time of the repast.—Paris Letter in the Enquirer.

SPURS TO ACTION.

The Very Simple Thing That Brought Mr.
Griddletop Back to Life.

"Some men need one spur, some another," said Mr. Griddletop.

"Now, there was my friend Sylvanus Griddletop. Mr. Griddletop was a man with a fair income, which, when the financial cyclone came along, was very greatly reduced. Mr. Griddletop promptly shortened sail to accommodate himself to the altered weather; he economized in all directions, and he was surprised to find how much he could economize; and while the new order of things wasn't like the old, it was gratifying to Mr. Griddletop to discover that it still afforded some measure of comfort.

At last the financial cyclone passed, but Mr. Griddletop, who had accepted the changed situation manfully, now discovered that in the course of that enforced period of comparative idleness
his manfulness had given way to sluggishness; he had found it quite possible to live upon his reduced means, and now, instead of making an effort, he did as men sometimes do in like circumstances—he settled down into a placid, dull contentment with what he had.

"One of the economies that Mr. Griddletop began to practice immediately upon the curtailment of his income had been that of blacking his own shoes.
There had seemed no easier way of saving $18 a year than this, and he had found the work easy enough, without realizing at the time that this, like many another economy, like giving up going to the theater, for instance, meant the cutting off of so much communication with the world, and so tended to the gradual narrowing of his existence.

"One day, when he had occasion to see a man on a matter of business, finding his shoes in a not very presentable condition, Mr. Griddletop stepped up on a bootblack's stand and took his seat in the comfortable chair, as he had not done in a year before, and put his feet upon the metal footrests. It was like stepping back into the world from which he had been so long apart; it awakened
in him a desire for all the old time activities and pleasures of life. He stepped down from the bootblack's stand with a new ambition. It was for him just the needed spur to action."—New York Sun.

STARTLED THE OLD LADY.

An Inquisitive Youth Tumbled Over a Partition Upon a Spinster's Bed.

"When Mount Tabor, N. J., was first taken possession of by the Newark conference of the Methodist Episcopal church," said a clergyman of that denomination recently, "we had little money with which to clear up the grounds and erect the first buildings necessary. After putting up a sort of open air pavilion in which the preaching services could be held, we began to cast around for some buildings where transient guests might be accommodated.

"The structure resulting from this necessity was a long frame building,
which was christened the 'Tabor House'.
In constructing the house on an economical basis as possible the partitions
were not run all the way up to the rafters and the room was not ceiled.

"I shall never forget," continued the minister, "one of my first nights in this rather crude hotel. After I had retired I was suddenly aroused with a start by the most unearthly shriek.

"Murder! Thieves! Robbers! Help!
Help!" a woman was shouting at the top of her lungs.

"I hustled out into the narrow hall
in my nightgown and found others in the same attire—both men and women
—running around in a distracted way.
We all stopped before a door from which the sounds proceeded.

"You beast! Help! Help! Murder!"
still came the cries.

"There was a sound of scuffling from within, and suddenly the door opened and a woman, excited, panting, with wild and disheveled locks, appeared at the door clutching a boy, who was more frightened even than was the woman.

"One glance settled it. The boy was the son of a woman occupying the adjoining room. The little fellow, out of curiosity, had climbed to the top of the partition, and, losing his balance, had fallen over into the next room, landing on the bed of a rather elderly spinster.

"The ridiculousness of the whole affair seemed to dawn upon all at the same time, and every one joined in a good, hearty laugh. The boy was punished, and the old maid left the next day."—New York Herald.

A Typical English Inn.

The inn was set close to the river,
and although the highroad ran a mile farther inland the Angel inn had the air of having seen more stirring times.
The little inn sitting room was parlor
and taproom in one; its chairs occupied friendly arms, bits of old silver gleamed
on the mantelshelf, and low settles, cupboards and tables of antique make were suggestive of the dead and gone figures that had peeped in the cozy room. In the smile of the genial host there was the welcome which imagination lends to mine host of the coaching period.—"A Cruise on the Norfolk Brouds" in Centurury.

A Dangerous Remedy.

Bicarbonate of potassa is a remedy in common use in throat troubles. But it is not generally known that it should be used with discretion. A strong 32-year-old man at Braunschweig, instead of merely dissolving a little of the potassa in water for a gargle, poured a large quantity into a glassful of water and then swallowed the dose. He died a few hours later after terrible suffering.—New York World.

The Real Labor.

"Yes," said Mrs. Humminum, "I learned to cook without any difficulty at all. There was only one trouble about it."
"What was that?"
"Educating my husband's appetite."
